Meet the bad boys and girls of the primate world.

Meet the howlers. These sloppy, loud, and rude rainforest dwellers can be heard from over a mile away and take two to three naps a day. Don't get too close! The playful primates won't hesitate to urinate on or near you to mark their territory. Good thing their manners are for monkeys only.

April Pulley Sayre's playful poem and Woody Miller's richly comic art bring howler monkeys to life in all their growly, barking glory. Extra facts within the text give readers the lowdown on these loudmouths.

April Pulley Sayre has been awakened by hooting howlers on research trips to Panama. She is the award-winning author of more than fifty books for young readers, including Trout Are Made of Trees, Turtle, Turtle, Watch Out! and The Bumblebee Queen. In between tropical travels and school visits, she and her husband, Jeff, live in South Bend, Indiana.

Woody Miller makes his picture book debut with Meet the Howlers! As a child he was a naughty little monkey. Fortunately, he found a creative outlet for his mischief through art. Woody lives with his wife, Jessica, in San Mateo, California.
